I am Dipanjan Chakraborty, the SACT teacher of Department of Sanskrit. I joined the Shree Agrasen Mahavidyalaya on 21st August, 2018 as a guest lecturer. Since that day, the Department of Sanskrit has been established and my journey as a teacher has been started. At first, there was only one candidate. Slowly, other students joined the department and at present there are three students in the department for all semesters. Hopefully, the numbers would increase in near future.

At present, I am the only teacher at the department. I have added books on different subjects of Sanskrit to the library. When I joined the department, there was not sufficient books in the library on Sanskrit. But slowly I have moved forward and made an archive of valuable books in the library. Presently, there are many books in the library relevant to the semesters and courses.

My main motto is how to make the department bigger and encourage students to learn the ancient language of India. We don't have seminars on Sanskrit since 2018 because the number of students is less. But I wish to conduct seminar once we have sufficient number of students.

The Sanskrit Department is lagged behind on co-curricular activities as well than other departments in the college. The reason is that I am not only the Sanskrit teacher, but the music teacher as well.

My aim is to make this department bigger and encourage more students to learn Sanskrit. I want to add more relevant books to the library. Also, I want to organize seminars, workshops on different domains of Sanskrit in future.
